BELLA L

BELLA L. Forever young with photo-biostimulation

BELLA L is the new apparatus by ISO Italia for photobiostimulation, an innovative technology that gives you a youthful skin all over the body. After 35-40 years your skin starts ageing, horny layer of epidermis gets thicker (outer layer of skin), while the epidermis gets thinner and thinner. It happens because the collagen function of support gradually fades. Result: a partial tissue collapse Skin becomes less tonic and compact ultimately resulting in the formation of wrinkles. Collagen is the most important structural protein among our body's support structures. Collagen is produced by fibroblasts, fundamental cells of connective tissue, which is also located among various skin's cells making a supporting net for the skin. The photobiostimulation uses light to activate the collagen synthesis with the consequent an anti-ageing effect on skin. It is an absolute natural process, based on the fact that our body's cells (included skin), contain light absorbent receptors. Depending on the absorbed light wave length, there are different specific mechanisms of biological feedbacks, just like the ones you find in plants during the chlorophylls photosynthesis. Many scientific studies demonstrate that a selective light at 633nm stimulates a development of cells activity and consequently an increase of collagen production. Perfect result with a natural process. That's the beginning of the photorejuvenation.
